

Help the families of children and young people in your setting better understand and support their child's behaviour at home

Family Engagement Training Courses

When it comes to supporting behaviour, a shared consistent approach between you and your staff and families at home is incredibly effective, but it's not always easy to achieve.

With our 2-day Family Engagement Training course you'll learn how to build positive and effective relationships with the families of children and young people in your setting, and how to support them with behaviour at home, through engaging training workshops and My Family Coach resources.

You'll gain all the knowledge and skills you need to build that essential shared understanding of behaviour as communication, and support families with effective strategies they can use at home, so every individual receives the best possible all-round support.

Family Engagement Training

Who is the course for?

The 2-day Family Engagement Training course is for anyone who works directly with parents and carers. This course is also suitable for senior leaders looking to develop family engagement and positive behaviour support for families at an organisational level.

Please note, you must have valid Level One Team Teach training certification (or beyond) to participate in this course.

This training takes the philosophy of Team Teach and identifies how core messages can be shared with families to better support children's behaviour, therefore an understanding of the Team Teach approach is essential.

- ✓ understand of the Team Teach approach and how it can help families understand and support their child's behaviour
- ✓ identify next steps for improving accessibility to information and consider the effectiveness of current family engagement strategies for supporting children's behaviour
- ✓ successfully facilitate family workshops with parents and carers, using My Family Coach supporting resources, underpinned by the Team Teach philosophy and approach to behaviour.

Family Engagement Training

2-day course

Day

The first day is focused on the context of your particular setting and on developing a toolkit of ideas and strategies you can use to improve communication with the families you work with.

We'll discuss building trusting relationships, the barriers and challenges you face, and ways you can change perceptions.

We'll also explore ways to diffuse conflict and create spaces for emotional conversations and how to work with parents and carers so they feel part of the decision making for their child.

Day

The second day is an opportunity to learn more about delivering My Family Coach behaviour training workshops to support the families you work with in your setting.

You'll focus on accessibility and how you can reach even more families, feeding into your Accessibility Plan.

The My Family Coach workshops you'll be able to deliver will help families better understand their child's behaviour and develop skills in positive behaviour support (verbal and non-verbal communication), positive listening and learning, diversion and de-escalation.

You'll also look at ways to personalise the workshops to the needs of families in your setting and work collaboratively with other course participants to deliver some practice workshop modules effectively in group presentations.

To support you with on-going family engagement, you'll also receive:

- A family workshop presentation slide deck
- A package of supporting resources for delivering family workshops
- Access to My Family Coach resources and journal app

Hear from some of our recent course attendees:

Being a trainer in Team Teach I was very excited for the course to be developed for parents. There are many short courses out there for families, however, I was pleased to see the Team Teach facilitator workshop maintained the values Team Teach uphold. It provided an informative and accessible foundation for families to begin to understand why behaviours of concern occur, and furthermore, what potential positive strategies they can start to implement.

The trainer was authentic and clearly passionate about the content of the course, offering at times her own personal journey. I think this put trainees at ease and made the trainer more relatable. She encouraged trainees to think about the cohorts of people we all work with so that we can tailor the content to suit their needs.

It was a privilege to be part of this training. The content was tailored to ensure all trainees were confident in accessing and delivering information relevant to their setting. The trainer was fluent in sharing her knowledge and expertise and the sharing of her experiences made the training very easy to listen to and helped to bring things to life.

I would recommend the course as it provides structure and a theoretical perspective that can be presented in an accessible way to enable families to feel better able to support their children and strengthen their relationships.
